

Hi! I am going to be asking you some questions today.

Before we begin, I have some information for you, and I am going to read it to make sure that I cover everything. We are asking people questions to gather a better understanding of their values and preferences. The session should take about 30 minutes. The first thing I want to make clear is that we're just gathering information to better inform our designs. There are no wrong answers.

If you have any questions as we go along, just ask them.

Lastly, are you willing to allow me to record you for this interview? The recording will only be used to help us figure out how to improve a website, and it won't be seen by anyone except the people working on this project.
